

Many young people are leaving their homes in rural areas to study their or work in cities. What are the reasons? Do the advantages of this development outweigh it's disadvantage.

Modern civilization has witnessed a great so many changes in it's culture as well as living standards of people. There is an increasing trend among young people to leave their rural homes and move to urban areas. It could be a number of reasons ranging from high standard of life to better job opportunities all of which shall be discussed shortly.

To begin with, there can be a varying number of reasons that has lead to such a shift. The most important among them all would be job opportunities. Cities often offer better job offer that is not available in rural areas. Better job in turn corresponds to higher pay and allows the youth to enjoy a high quality life. Urban life also provides improved facilities on various aspects of life such as healthcare, education as well as people can enjoy life to the fullest. Leisure activities like night clubs, sports centers are also more easily accessible in major cities which they can indulge in.

As with the saying there is always two sides to a coin, such a development can have it's pros and cons. Urban life provides high living standards, improved facilities and a better framework for a family life. Law and order, safety and policy making runs efficiently more in cities rather than in village. Comparing with urban areas, villages offer a monotonous lifestyle with respect to vibrant city life. On the other hand, city life has it's disadvantages too. Sense of community and belonging is lost and it's easier to be swept away by the changing tides of city life. Peace and quite is forgotten there.

In conclusion, changing trends in lifestyle is a necessary part of life. This changing development of moving to Cities has both advantages and disadvantages. But the advantages seems to overweigh it's short comings, Job opportunities, higher living standards and better facilities definitely seem to be more useful and enjoyable to today's youth. This can well prove to be a necessary and well deserved change.
